Two-player game. The players need a game board each and something between them so that they can't see each other's boards. They need to choose the correct number of words from the list and write them, horizontally or vertically, one letter per square in the 'My Ships' section. To play the game, each player takes it in turn to give a coordinate. If the other player has a letter in that square, they say 'Hit' and what the letter is, and the player that asked writes it in the 'Enemy Ships' grid. If there's no letter in that square, they say 'Miss'. Once a player has lost all of their ships, they say 'You've sunk all of my ships.' To finish the game, the player that won has to say all of the words that the other player chose.
